SUBJECT INDEX-PART II

INTRODUCTION

The entries in this index refer to the abstracts by their serial number, not by the page number. The entries are grouped under headings (printed in bold type, e.g. "Abrasion") which represent, in the main, general categories or concepts rather than specific names. If a heading for a particular subject does not appear, a more general heading should be consulted; for example, "Zone plates" would be listed under "Diffraction/light"; "Barkhausen discontinuities" under "Magnetization process". There are numerous cross-references directing attention to related headings in other parts of the index.

Many of the headings are subdivided by the use of subheadings, which are indented (i.e. printed slightly to the right) and commence with a small letter (for example, see the subheadings under "Absorption").

ARRANGEMENT OF HEADINGS AND SUBHEADINGS

The headings are arranged throughout the index in alphabetical order according to British Standard 1749:1951 (the "word by word" system, not "reading right through"). The subheadings, with a few exceptions, are themselves arranged in alphabetical order under their respective headings. The exceptions (for example, see the subheadings under "Spectra", "Crystal structure, atomic") are cases where a more logical order is preferable to a purely alphabetical one.

ARRANGEMENTS OF ENTRIES UNDER HEADINGS

Entries are arranged in two alphabetical groups as follows. First group: generalities and named substances (in words); second group: named substances (chemical formulae). If a search is being made for a particular substance, both the first and second alphabetical groups should be inspected since, for example, alumina may also be listed as Al_2O_3.

COLLECTED LIST OF SUBJECT HEADINGS

The alphabetical arrangement of the headings is the most convenient for locating a known heading quickly, but there may be other related headings elsewhere in the index of which the reader is unaware, and which he would only come across by accident. To assist the reader to discover all the headings appropriate to his subject, a collected list of the headings is given on pages S540 to S554, which follow this page; they should be consulted as a matter of routine each time a search is made. In this list, the headings are not arranged in alphabetical order, but are grouped into sections by subject on the same basis as the arrangement of the abstracts in the monthly issues of Physics Abstracts. By using this list, the reader can quickly determine which are the headings appropriate to his subject, and they are then easily found in the main index in their alphabetical position.

HEADINGS WITH NO ENTRIES

Because physics is a developing subject, it is not possible to maintain the list of headings unchanged from year to year; it is subject to a continuous process of revision, with the introduction of new headings and subheadings, and the alteration and elimination of old ones. This process is a gradual one, however, and the great majority of the headings are the same as those of the previous year. To assist in maintaining the continuity of the index, all the headings in current use in a given year are printed, even those for which there are no abstracts to be recorded. The latter are followed by the announcement "No entries"; this supplies confirmation that these headings have not been dropped from the index, and entries may reappear under them in the next issue of the index.

ELEMENTS, COMPOUNDS AND OTHER SUBSTANCES

The names of elements, their compounds, a few compounds of special interest (e.g. "Ruby", "Water") and a few common materials (e.g. "Wood", "Paper") are included as headings or subheadings (e.g. "barium titanate" under "Barium compounds"). Under these, as well as under the appropriate "subject" headings, are listed any abstracts which contain significant physical information about the element, compound or substance named; except however, that abstracts listed under headings referring to nuclear properties, including radioactivity, are not necessarily also listed under the substance name. The entries under these headings are themselves arranged in alphabetical order of substance or nuclide names, so that a given substance can be readily located.

Inorganic compounds of the elements are listed under the first element in the chemical formula, and all the compounds of a given element are grouped under a single heading (e.g. "Sodium compounds"). Alloys are listed under compounds of the base or first-named constituent, e.g. Au–Ag alloys under "Gold compounds". There are also four special headings for the common alloys: "Aluminium alloys", "Copper alloys", "Iron alloys", "Nickel alloys". Organic compounds are grouped under "Organic compounds", "Polymers", "Plastics" and under special substance headings such as "Paper", "Proteins", etc.; all the latter are listed in the collected list of headings at the end of the index.

BEFORE USING INDEX, CONSULT LIST OF SUBJECT HEADINGS ON PAGES S540-S554 WHICH FOLLOW THIS PAGE

LIST OF SUBJECT INDEX HEADINGS

The headings used in the Alphabetical Index are listed below. The headings are grouped into sections on the same basis as the arrangement of the abstracts in the monthly issues of Physics Abstracts. Each section lists the headings which concern its subject and it follows that many of the headings are listed in several places.

An introduction to the Subject Index will be found on page S539.
